“Our metal halides would take a half-hour to come back on.

One time, I even had to start up an auxiliary generator just to get them going. The Orion lights turn on and off like house lights, and we sure appreciate that.”

“When we were looking at the milking parlor lighting, we were building a new machine shed, and we wanted good light there.” Hesselink said.

“With the energy savings Orion offered, the choice wasn’t difficult.”
